Integrating license activation into your software

You can provide fully automated activation for end users by integrating activation into your installer program or application. We recommend this option to provide a professional, seamless experience for your end users.

For Windows installations, you can integrate License Activator into your installer as described in Activating a license using License Activator.

For information on automating license activation, see Using the LAC API.