

Running License Statistics

License Statistics runs as a service on Windows and as a daemon on Linux.

For both Windows and Linux, you must first configure License Statistics before running it.

For platform-specific instructions for running License Statistics on Windows, see Starting and stopping License Statistics on Windows. For Linux instructions, see Starting and stopping License Statistics on Linux.

Do not run two different versions of License Statistics (for example, one for production and one for testing purposes) simultaneously on the same host.