Installing License Statistics on Linux

The information on this page refers to License Statistics v6.17 or newer, which made changes to the License Statistics installation procedure. If you are running a previous version of License Statistics, see documentation for previous versions.

License Statistics can be installed using one of the following installers, depending on your Linux distribution and/or customization needs:

RPM installer

DEB installer

Generic (universal) installer